VIII. ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT UPDATE

Gregory LaVann reported the following information:

- The Amazon building is anticipated to be done by fall of 2025, hiring will begin then
  - Can work together with the workforce development team on trying to collaborate a meeting to get involved with them on their hiring process
  - Anticipating upwards of 250 jobs
- Working on another deal with a company that would build a 250,000 square foot distribution facility
  - Would employ upwards of 100 employees
  - Hoping to provide an update within the next 6 months or so on the client
- Project Ambition just applied for their air quality permit to essentially start with their paper processing plant in Yuma County
  - Possibly within the next 3 to 4 months they will go before City of Yuma Council to speak about their permitting process
  - It's going to be a very transformative project, during phase 1 will hire about 50 employees averaging $85,000 a year
  - After 3 years, they anticipate moving to phase 2, which then would scale up to about 250 employees and about half a billion-dollar capital investment
  - Will keep ARIZONA@WORK in the loop as we move further down the line when they are ready to start hiring
  - Started to talk about some of their key management positions that they have to fill
- Myers Power is a company in San Luis, they have been there for about 8 months and waiting on their equipment
  - Spoke to a plant manager and they are close to being ready to start hiring
  - Will be a great project for the City of San Luis, phase 1 will be a moderate, 50 to 75 jobs
  - Phase 2, if they close their plant in California, then that would essentially allow them to scale up to over 300 jobs in San Luis
- Had the opportunity to speak with a group called Bright Night Solar
  - Entered into a power purchase agreement with APS for 600 megawatts of power
  - This is a unique project because the solar actually will be within Yuma County and very close to City of San Luis and City of Yuma
  - This project will be the 1st of its kind to be a major solar project that is not out in Dateland
  - Anticipating over a thousand construction jobs and will be looking to have an open house within the upcoming months to talk about the project on next steps and how they can get engaged with our local trades and subcontractors to bid for this 1.2-billion-dollar project

- Will be a battery along with a solar energy project in Yuma County
- Ultimately the full-time jobs will be between 5 and 10, but in interim for 3 years its estimating over a thousand construction jobs to build this very sophisticated solar plant
- EVOlution anticipates they will be moving ground and getting their building started very soon off of 42E
  - It's a cobalt processing facility at about 200 million dollars capital investment with 85 jobs
  - It would be the 1st cobalt processing plant in all of the United States
  - They have been working very diligently to raise capital and get the final mile of equity needed to start the project
- There are 2 major infrastructure projects,
  - One is a major gas line that's going to be coming through our county
    - If permitted, it's going to be starting in Buckeye and making its way down to Mexico to provide natural gas to plants in Mexico
    - Would bring an additional infrastructural improvement to Yuma County, which will be very beneficial for future economic development activities
  - The second one is a 500-kilovolt electrical expansion that's going to be occurring in northern city of Yuma and extending into California
    - Will be very important as well for our community, because essentially, we would build a stronger backbone and redundancy for power in our local area and will help support our entire community when it comes to electricity
    - Project is going to be slated to begin in 2027 and be done by 2034
    - It's over a billion-dollar project, a major development and natural gas project
    - It's working its way through the Federal Government approval process
